Planship of the Paramas Expedition.

Bostor, (nata Fe) Feb. 22, 1848.

I have lately written you a pretty long letter, but, as several interesting events have happened since, I will again endeavor to give you a hasty sketch of them. All our difficulties with Paraguay having been satisfactorily arranged for the present, the Fulton and Waterwitch left Assumption on the 13th inst.

The day after the treaty was signed, Commissioner Bowlin, accompanied by Commodore Shubrick and all the officers heart and hand, for better or worse, the old and steadfast friends of each, we hope, will continue to give it their support, and the Publishers that encouragement which their energy and couragement which their energy and of our two vessels that could be spared very exalted opinion of his dignity, and is a great stickler on ceremony, so that all who wished to be present at this interview were ordered by the Commodore to appear in full dress. Nearly every naval efficer has a strong antipathy for a stiff collared coat and cocked hat, yet on this occasion we mustered nearly thirty volunteers. As we marched along the quiet streets of Assumption in this style, with swords dangling at our sides, we presented quite a formidable array. As it happened that this was the first time that I had any oceasion for mounting a cocked hat or a full dress coat, (although I have been taking good care of them, in traveling nearly forty thousand miles, for any particular occasion that might turn up,) I considered that Lopez was benered sufficiently by me.

THE UNSEEN BATTLE-FIELD. There is an unseen battle-field

In every human breast, Where two opposing forces meet, And where they seldom rest,

That field is verted from mortal sight, Tis only seen by One,
Who knows alone where victory lies,

When each day's fight is done One army clusters strong and fierce,

His voice the bursting storm; His captains, Pride and Lust and Hate, Whole troops watch night and day, Swift to detect the weakest point,

And thirsting for the fray, Contending with this mighty force,

Is but a little band; Yet there, with an unqualing front, These warriors family stand. Their leader is of god-like form,

Of countenance serene, And glowing on his naked breast A naked cross is seen. His captains, Fanh, and Hope, and Love,

Point to that wondrous sign, And gazing on it, all receive Strength from a source divine. They feel it speaks a glorious truth, A truth as great as sure— That to be victors, they must learn

To love, confide, endure. That faith sublime in wildest strife Imparts a hely calm— For every deadly blow a shield,

For every wound a balm. And when they win the battle-field,

Past toil is quite forgot; The plain where carnage once had reigned Becomes a hallowed spot— A spot where flowers of joy and peace Spring from the fertile sod, And breathe the perfame of their praise On every breeze—to God.
